CLERK TO:

ALL DISCOVERY MOTIONS FILED WILL BE HEARD AT THE TIME OF THE PRE TRIAL CONFERENCE.

At the end of this case, you may be assessed restitution. This may include three different categories of restitution: monetary damages to victims (referred to as pecuniary damages); fines, penalties, or surcharges (referred to as Category A restitution); and repayment for your legal defense, crime victim assistance reimbursement, court costs, contribution to a local anticrime organization, or restitution to the medical assistance program pursuant to chapter 249A (referred to as Category B restitution). With respect to Category B restitution items, you may request the court to determine whether you have the reasonable ability to pay the full amount of those items. If you do not request the court to make that determination, the court will presume you have the ability to pay the full amount of Category B restitution and will order you to do so. You will also lose any chance to challenge your ability to pay the full amount of the Category B restitution ordered.
If you want to request a determination of less than a full ability to pay Category B restitution, you must make the request to the court, either by making the request in writing or by telling the court at the time of disposition/sentencing hearing. Before the court can make this determination, however, you must file a current court approved Affidavit of Financial Status. If you have not filed this Affidavit of Financial Status before your disposition/sentencing hearing, the court will find you have the full ability to pay Category B restitution. In order to have that determination changed, you must file the Affidavit of Financial Status within 30 days of your disposition/sentencing hearing. If you do not file the Affidavit of Financial Status within 30 days, you give up your request to have the court determine your ability to pay Category B restitution.
